• Douglass Residential College Overview – Douglass Residential College is the only residential women’s college in the nation that is housed within a world class public research university. Douglass students enjoy a small college atmosphere and programs that support their success and leadership. At the same time, they engage with all the rich educational and research resources of Rutgers–New Brunswick.
• Honors College Overview – The Honors College is a living-learning community focused on tackling global challenges and transforming ideas into action. Each year, the top 500 first-year students from across Rutgers–New Brunswick are invited to begin their college journey as part of the Honors College. Founded in 2015, the Honors College offers an education for the twenty-first century while reflecting on the university’s rich 250+ year history. This is more than a place of study. It’s more than a college experience. The Honors College is a home for students who want to learn and help make the world a better place.
• Living Learning Communities Overview – Rutgers University–New Brunswick learning communities are self-selected groups of students who share similar academic interests and explore them together in common courses and out-of-classroom activities. Learning communities are available at no extra cost. Students in learning communities report making friends quickly and being part of unique opportunities for academic and social success.
• Career Exploration and Success – Career Exploration and Success (CES) is committed to assisting students with making connections between their academic experience and career paths. CES provides career-related advising, resources, and programs to help individuals discover their interests, values, and skills; explore careers and majors; develop skills through internships and experiential opportunities; and pursue their post-graduate goals.
